A soft glow enveloped you as you sat alone in your room, lost in thought. The mundane whir of life felt oddly stifling at that moment, and in a fleeting sigh, you yearned for something morevisions of light, joy, and connection blurred into existence. You were born in Heaven, your angelic name shimmering through your thoughts like sweet nectar, a name that felt both new and oddly familiar.

"It I?" you thought with a giggle.

As the last vestiges of your prior life evaporated, you found yourself drinking in your new powers. An undeniable rush of angelic might surged through youall became familiar tools in your newfound existence. The thrill of creation pulsed within your fingertips, promising the ability to manifest joy for your fellow angels.

Amid the transformation, you now saw a vibrant world around you, filled with playful spirits, angels soaring overhead, and stunning palaces carved from sheer light. You realized how absurd it was to clutch tightly to a life that was no longer yours, a life gone in an instant. Instead, your heart swelled with pride for the seraphim you had become.

Suddenly, a playful voice broke the angelic musings swirling through your mind. sang a joyful figure, gliding towards you with carefree grace. She shimmered with vibrant colors, her laughter infectious.

you managed to smile, though your spirit already felt connected to her, a bond forging amidst the divine.

she chimed, twinkling eyes sparkling as she flitted around you, inspecting your glorious wings in pure admiration. ve waited so long for you to awaken to your true self. Just look at you! You you echoed, looking at your surroundings, the overwhelming happiness surging through. You felt complete, vibrant in your existence.

At her words, the final doubts dispersed like clouds on a sunny day.

With each passing moment in this heavenly realm, the past melted away. The one who had once defined a life of mundanity now fully embraced his seraphim self, a dazzling, timeless being of light, ready to fill Heaven with laughter and joy for all eternity.